

10 Online Universities that offer Web Designing Certificate Courses

Web designing is a very interesting subject that involves the look and feel of the website, the technology that can be used, display of content on the web page, the navigation on the website, the pictures, and the multimedia shown on the website. There are several online web designing certificate courses and here we have listed ten of them and described in short their uniqueness.

- University of Nevada, Las Vegas - The Graphic Design Certificate course will help the student understand the intricacies of web page designing, how to make or break the rules of design to suit the look of the website, and is a generic online web design course. This web design course is a step towards becoming a good web designer and requires you to do your project work using software of your choice.
- University of Phoenix - In the Visual Communication Certificate course they start with the introduction of computers, you are taught about image editing, publishing, e-learning course design, and multimedia. Hence you are able to make proficient web pages after doing this course. The web design course includes graphic design and technology tools to create amazing visual communication. Hence the skills learnt in the online web design course can be used in web sites, corporate reports, advertising, business presentation, instructional materials, electronic publications, and animated movies.
- Kaplan University - The Internet and Website Development Certificate is a complete course if you want to learn the making of website for online businesses. The web designing course covers everything e.g. data concepts, design, tools required to make website, and multimedia. The cost of this web designing course is $353 for a credit hour and you require to complete 36 credit hours for getting certificate.
- The Art Institute of Pittsburgh - The Web Design (Certificate) will tutor you to the basics of web site design, graphics, and animation development specifically for the web. You will be coached during this web design course in various web site design models used in commercial, personal, and government web sites.
- The Art Institute of Charlotte - The Web Design – Certificate offers a dynamic mix of technology and art. The students are given enough exposure to scripting and programming skills required for content display on the websites. This online web design course prepares you for entry level jobs in the web design industry.
- Strayer University - The Web Page Development course requires you to cover 4.5 credit hours. The course requires you to have completed the Computer Programming Design before starting this course. This web designing course is an interesting course where you are taught how the web pages can be made lighter so that they load quickly, about links, HTML, and XML to create the web pages.
- University of California, Irvine - Web Development with HTML will cost $650. You will be taught about how HTML works. Three scheduled WebEx discussions along with the online teaching make the course very innovative.
- University of Massachusetts - Certificate in Website Design and Development lets you gain 12 credits for Bachelor's Degree in Information Technology. The web design course gives you good fundamentals to make dynamic websites.
- Westwood College - The Web Design & Multimedia (Bachelor's) course believes that the internet is here to stay. You will learn to develop web sites and become comfortable in HTML, JavaScript, CSS, PHP, HTTP, and Actionscript. Search engine optimization, web marketing, design, composition, and layout are some topics covered in this web designing course.
- Full Sail University - The Web Design and Development (Bachelor's) course highlights include Web Standards design, flash design and animation. The focus of the online web design course is mainly on front-end and techniques to make the websites.